

Official Weather Report—Partly Cloudy and Slightly Colder.

Talk About Investments!

When you can buy such elegant Suits and Overcoats as these at prices like these—you're getting the biggest investment in the United States. Twice the money won't buy these qualities next year at the rate woolen prices are climbing. And remember these are the final and lowest reduced prices we'll quote this season.

Fine $20 and $25 Suits and Overcoats... $13
Fine $30 and $35 Suits and Overcoats... $19

D. J. Kaufman

(INCORPORATED)

The Man's Store.

1005-7 Pa. Ave.

KAISER'S GOAT-GETTER
RETIRES FROM ARMY

Capt. Steunenberg to Desert Sword for Poesy.

Capt. G. Steunenberg, U. S. A., whose sarcastic verse about "Kaiser Bill" and his military methods made the German world mad, has been granted leave of absence for retirement on account of ill health, and it was stated at the War Department last night his application will be accepted. Capt. Steunenberg will devote his time to literary work.

Some of the past literary efforts of Capt. Steunenberg got him into trouble, particularly "The German-trained Army of the Turks." That bit of verse brought a hint to the White House from the Fatherland that an official rebuke of the writer would be at all displeasing to the Kaiser. Steunenberg got the rebuke, too—but he kept right on writing.

Capt. Steunenberg is a native of Idaho, and a brother of the late Gov. Steunenberg, of that State, who was assassinated by labor agitators several years ago. He is 47 years of age, and in the last twenty-five years has served as an enlisted man in the navy, an officer of volunteers, an enlisted man and finally an officer of regulars. He has distinguished himself in the service as an ice skater and a musician.

Here are verses from the poem that almost brought Steunenberg before an army court-martial:

Away from Constantinople the hosts of Allah sped,
And the only ones that halted were the ones that stopped the lead.
Quoth a Serbian Lieutenant then: "Tis evident to me
That your army has been studying the books of Von Molt-kee!"

Said a panting Turkish corporal—from German teaching freed—
"We ain't much on formation, but we sure are h-l for speed!"
So they sprinted night and morning 'til their lungs were fit to burst,
But they won the six-day Marathon—they reached the city first!

A tale that points a moral, "Most any one can see
That it's time to disregard the ways of the sacred Scripture," said Lee;
For the sacred Scripture tells us: "Ye shall know them by their works";
So we lift our hats to Von der Goltz, the man who trained the Turks!

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.
For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

And while the German eagle soars above the Balkan storm,
It strikes us as a fitting time to change the uniform;
Let's get one of those shiny things they wear across the breast,
And add a gleaming helmet with an eagle on the crest.

And down at sunny Leavenworth let Dutch professors rule;
And build a model brewery—an annex to the school—
A marble bust of Von der Goltz resplendent in the hall,
And photographs of Kaiser Bill adorning every wall.

And he who seeks promotion must subsist a solid year
On pretzels, cheese, and wieners, and good old German beer;
And notify the colonels—sound the warning near
That they've got to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" before they get the star.

And now, while Europe trembles on the verge of deadly fray,
The dove of peace is cooing in the good old U. S. A.

For, you bet, the foreign powers will leave Uncle Sam alone
While our highbrows down at Leavenworth are studying Von Bohn.

WILL HOLD HEARINGS
ON NEWSPRINT PRICES

Trade Commission to Confer with Publishers Before Decision.

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday arranged to hold hearings this week on the proposal of the newspaper manufacturers that the commission fix a maximum selling price for their products and also supervise distribution.

The commission will confer at length with both manufacturers and publishers before reaching a decision. It was announced last night. Whether or not the proposed plan is to be put in operation will depend upon the outcome of these conferences.

The commission explained yesterday that hearings are imperative because the plan submitted originated with manufacturers who control production and are in position to dominate the market. The commission is still waiting to hear from many other of the smaller manufacturers as to their attitude. It has not yet been ascertained whether the proposed plan would adversely affect the interests of the smaller manufacturers. The commission, therefore, will learn the views of this group as well as publishers who would be directly affected.

The commission is said to feel there is but slight possibility that many publishers will be unwilling to accept the proposal of the larger manufacturers. Under the proposal the manufacturers agree not only to have the commission fix a maximum price for the year beginning March 1, 1917, but to make deliveries in cases where contracts have been made for less than the price that might be prescribed.

The commission's fight to secure reasonable rates and equitable distribution of newspaper paper has led to the drafting of a drastic anti-extortion law, which the commission will present to Congress. The proposed law, it is expected, will be whipped into final shape within a few days and administration leaders will be asked to rush it through before Congress expires on March 4.

The measure, as it is now framed, would permit the Federal Trade Commission to proceed quickly and decisively against any individual or group of individuals who attempt to corner any commodity or commodities for the purpose of raising prices. The bill is being drawn by Francis J. Heney, special counsel of the commission.

GYPSY EVANGELIST
SLAMS INFIDELITY

Eighty-five Penitents Hit Cinder Trail During Day.

With the tabernacle filled to overflowing, "Gypsy" Smith last night preached on the subject, "Where is the Lord God of Elisha?" He slammed sin right and left and told of the complete surrender necessary to be a Christian.

"Society without God is Hell," he shouted, while the audience gasped. "I'd rather have a little humble home of my own with God in it than a huge mansion without God."

"We hear a lot about infidelity nowadays. Infidelity has never helped anyone. What has infidelity done for the down and out man? What has infidelity done for the girl who entered motherhood by the wrong door? What has infidelity done for anyone who has been in need of help? Nothing, absolutely nothing."

"God commands that first you forsake every sin. You must desire to know the honest truth. Don't say you don't want to know Him. The trouble with some of you is that there is something between you and God. Get rid of it. It means some of fellows down there will have to go home and clear up some awful lies, but you must do it. You will not know Christian liberty, real liberty, until you do it. The moment you give God a chance you will know liberty and ease of conscience."

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

The big audience heard him with serious, upturned faces. About fifty people raised their hands as a sign of asking a remembrance in prayer. In the fifteen minutes that followed, fifty people—old men, children, pretty girls and careworn mothers, responded to the invitation to accept Christ as their personal Savior or the refrain of "Just as I Am," and "Where He Leads Me I Will Follow." The number of converts during the afternoon and evening was eighty-five.

GREAT FAVORITES
These Two Big Special Home Outfits

Outfit No. 2

This
Grafonola "75"
and 24 selections on 12 blue-label records for only

$1.25
Per Week

The peer of all musical instruments for home pleasure.

$84.00

Outfit No. 1

Just $1.00
PER WEEK

will put this $50 Grafonola and 24 selections on 12 blue-label records in your home—

$59.00

Seventh and
Eye Sts.

HOUSE & HERRMANN

Seventh and
Eye Sts.

LAST RITES FOR M. H. DOOLEY.

Railroad Man's Body to Be Interred in Knoxville, Tenn.

Funeral services for M. H. Dooley, chief claim agent of the Southern Railway, who died yesterday at his residence, 1419 R street northwest, will be held this evening at 5 o'clock at his late home, prior to shipping the remains to Knoxville, Tenn., for interment.

Mr. Dooley was born in Patrick County, Va., in 1845. In 1907 he entered the employ of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railway Company in the road-way department. In 1896 he was appointed chief claim agent for the Southern Railway, and held that position up to the day of his death. He is survived by his widow, Mary Dooley, and one daughter, Mrs. George S. Morehead, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

SPEAKS ON AMERICAN IDEALS.

Rev. Frank W. Collier, of the American University, spoke yesterday afternoon at the Lobby Service, held at the Young Men's Christian Association, on American Ideals as taken from the teachings of Jesus Christ. He said that all men are brethren, and equal in the sight of God.

Touching upon the present crisis Dr. Collier said that Christians should be neither pacifists or militarists, but that all should stand by the Constitution.

GROSNER'S
Semi-Annual
FACTORY SALE

MEN---

We don't exaggerate one bit when we say that such values may never come again---and you can't equal them in all Washington.

Kuppenheimer
The World-Famous Quality Clothes

SUITS AND OVERCOATS

All $22.50 and
$25.00 Grades

$16.85

All $27.00 to
$32.50 Grades

$18.85

MEN--- Every sale we make at these reduced prices means a new customer and a permanent friend for the House of Quality.

You get the same guarantee you would receive if you paid full regular price.

$65 VALUE FUR-LINED OVERCOATS. $27.85

$27.50 VALUE QUILT-ED-LINED OVERCOAT.. $16.85

THE STORE WHERE QUALITY COUNTS
GROSNER'S
1013 PENNA. AVE. N.W.

COSMOS

Special Showing of the Great Universal
NEW WAR AND PREPAREDNESS FILM
'THE EAGLE'S WINGS'
"WAKE UP AMERICA"
A Thundering Drama with a Thundering Message
Shown at 1:00, 4:45 and 10:15. All Week, Except Thursday & Sunday.

INSPECTORS CHECK UP
"DOPE" PRESCRIPTIONS

Records of Narcotic Sales Examined in Drug Stores.

Inspectors of the Public Health Service, who see to the enforcement of the Harrison narcotic law, are keeping a careful record of all narcotic prescriptions.